Celebrating 25 Years of the Journal of Menopausal Medicine

Jung Ryeol Lee, MD, PhD
Editor-in-Chief
Journal of Menopausal Medicine

On behalf of the Editorial Board, it is a great pleasure to inform our readers that this year marks the 25th anniversary of the Journal of Menopausal Medicine (JMM).

The Korean Society of Menopause was founded in 1992, and the first issue of the Journal of the Korean Society of Menopause was published in 1995. For the past 25 years, the Korean Society of Menopause and the Journal of the Korean Society of Menopause have been working on research and treatment to improve the health and quality of life of middle-aged women. In 2010, the journal was renamed the JMM and has been published three times a year since then. Since 2013, the JMM has been indexed by PubMed Central.

In this special edition marking the 25th anniversary of the JMM, we are publishing a special commentary on the history of the JMM by the Editor Emeritus, Professor Hae-Hyeog Lee; congratulatory messages from the present and former presidents of the Korean Society of Menopause to celebrate the journal’s 25th anniversary; and the most-cited JMM articles as well as guidelines for menopausal hormone therapy that will interest many readers. In addition, in ordinary issues, valuable reviews and research papers on issues related to the health of middle-aged women are regularly published. Recently, the JMM’s social networking service channel, Kakao Talk, was opened, providing another route to communicate with readers and members and to share news from the JMM and the Korean Society of Menopause.

We are deeply grateful for the support and encouragement of the authors, editors, reviewers, and readers who have supported the JMM for the past 25 years, and we will do our best to become a more reputable journal.

We also would like to express our heartfelt thanks to all those who have taken the time and effort to contribute to this special issue, including the journal’s editors and the secretariat of the society.
