Congratulations to the Journal of Menopausal Medicine (JMM) on Their 25th Anniversary

Jung Gu Kim, MD, PhD
Former Chairman (2006–2008)
Korean Society of Menopause

The Korean Society of Menopause (KSM) held its promoters’ general assembly in January 1992 and the founding academic conference in July. Back then, not only doctors but even women themselves used to be indifferent to the topic of menopause. Therefore, the first necessary step was to publish menopause guidelines for doctors and promote female health awareness. Thereafter, in 1995, as research on menopause increased and a dedicated journal was considered necessary, the first issue of the JMM was published. Today, I feel overwhelmed with joy to see how far JMM has come!

During the early days of the JMM, only Korean manuscripts were published twice a year, which later increased to four-times a year. In 2009, the JMM was registered with KoreaMed. In 2011, the online manuscript submission system was introduced. In 2013, the journal’s name was changed to its present name: the Journal of Menopausal Medicine, and thereafter, only English manuscripts have been published. Finally, in 2014, the JMM was recognized as an academic journal by PubMed, which was followed by the registration with the Korea Research Foundation (KRF) in 2015. Currently, the JMM publishes manuscripts of global menopause scholars, not only from Asia but also from the United States, Europe, and South America. These achievements can be attributed to the prolonged efforts of the chairmen, editors-in-chief, editors, as well as members of the society. Once again, I would like to express my gratitude to all of you and hope that the JMM will become a world-famous journal for menopause studies. Moreover, I hope it will be registered with the SCI, and to achieve this, I would earnestly request every member and executive for their cooperation and effort.

As my closing remark, I would again like to congratulate the JMM on their 25th anniversary.
